WHAT IS THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN: SUBLIMATED / CUT AND SEW

SUBLIMATED jerseys are created using a printing process that involved dyeing the fabric with ink that's then fused into the material. The processes uses heat and pressure to transfer the design onto the fabric, creating a permanent and durable image.

CUT & SEW, or twill jerseys, are created by sewing layer of fabric onto the jersey to create the design. The fabric is typically a twill material, which is tightly woven cotton or polyester fabric that's durable and long-lasting.

Please note - Colours may appear differently between Cut & Sew and Sublimation. Ask us for more information.

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW

Please review the simple process as shown below

- 1 Please do not size jerseys / socks / pant shells with a different brand. Each brand will use a different custom template to build their garments which means there will be slight variations across each brand.
- 2 If the sponsor logo is required, please upload it when filling out the order form. Logos must be in vector format files. If the required logo format is not available, an art redraw charge will be applied to the order.
- 3 Once all the required information and appropriate logo files are submitted, a proof will be sent for your approval.
- 4 Once the order has gone into production, an estimated arrival date will be communicated.
- 5 Once the order is complete, you will be notified.

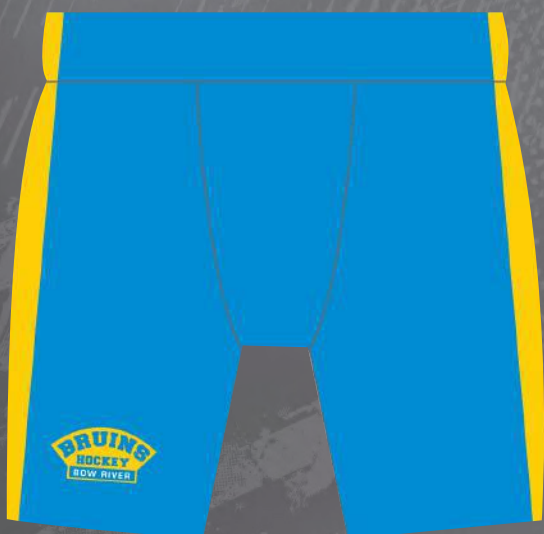

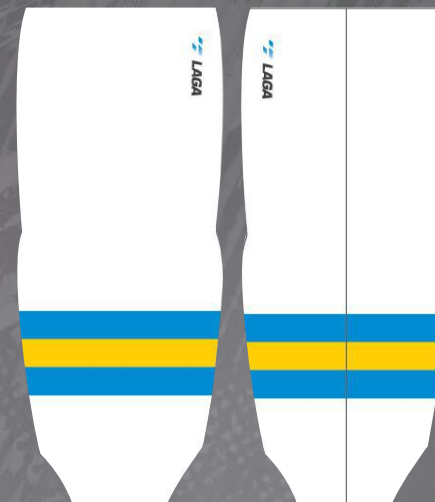

PLEASE CHECK THE BOX OF YOUR CHOSEN DESIGN OPTION ON THE FOLLOWING PAGES AND REFERENCE IT BY NAME WHEN DISCUSSING YOUR CHOICE.
